Hospitality Insurance Group Puts Checks in the Mail

Liquor Liability Policy Refunds Issued to Policyholders Affected by COVID-19

Hospitality Insurance Group recently completed its first round of COVID-19 refunds for liquor liability policies that expired between March 16, 2020 and May 4, 2020. Those policyholders affected are receiving a check for the reimbursement for the number of days closed on their expiring policy. The endorsements have been processed and checks are being mailed out the week of April 20th.

“This is welcomed news for policyholders that could use a little extra cash at this time,” said Richard Welch, Jr., President & CEO of Hospitality Insurance Group. “Overall, we processed almost $90,000 in refunds! We want to provide relief to our policyholders and at the same time make sure they do not worry about losing vital insurance protection for their businesses.”

A second round of COVID-19 refund credits will occur after the reopen dates are determined in each state that the company provides coverage. At that time, Hospitality will process credits for the number of days closed and apply that to the outstanding balance due on the policy. If the policy was paid in full, a refund check will go to the insured or finance company that provided payment. If applying the credit results in an overpayment, the insured or finance company will be mailed a refund check.
